THE BIG SLEEP

The Big Sleep - no, not the film starring Bogart and Bacall, but the Big Sleep at Stonehenge. If I had a bucket list, this would be one of the things on it. An experience seeing the stones late at night, listening to Romy Wyeth telling us the story of Stonehenge and on Friday the 13th to boot.

Obviously, you are now asking why, on a cold night in October, I was sleeping at Stonehenge. The whole event had been planned by Alabare, one of whose aims is to end homelessness for veterans by providing a pathway of accommodation and support to enable a successful transition to Civilian life.

As fundraising events go, the organisation of this was most impressive, the cafeterias at Stonehenge provided us with a hot meal and drink and remained open until midnight in case we needed snacks or more hot drinks. We slept out at the visitors' centre. Just after 9.30 pm, we walked to the stones. This is quite a hike but, a risk assessment had been completed so there were glow sticks showing us the way, and any uneven surfaces were also marked with glow sticks.

To be that close to the stones late at night was a pleasure and a privilege. Listening to the comments of some of the youngsters was an insight, yes they had their mobiles but were using them as torches and they were listening to every word, even trying out the device that showed the laylines: two iron bars, that turned and crossed each other at a certain point. One of the young men was asked if he had turned them and his response was, "No they moved in my hand," a look of wonder on his face. It made me smile that he kept going back and forth just to experience the action.

MINISTRY LETTER

I am writing this on the twentieth anniversary of the death of Diana Princess of Wales. The event had a profound effect, and perhaps we can remember what we were doing the day the news broke. Our nation has recalled a number of important anniversaries in recent months, such as the Retreat from Dunkirk. Family anniversaries of birth, death and marriage mean a great deal to us: friends of mine recently celebrated their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary! Photograph albums are a good way of recalling such events, although maybe in this digital age these are becoming less common.

As the Family of God, we also have our anniversaries; we have the important ones such as the Harvest Thanksgiving, Christmas, Easter and Pentecost; we can add to these the birthdays and dates of the deaths (especially martyrdoms) of the saints. Our Service books give special prayers and readings for these occasions.

Some years back, I was preparing a parishioner from a non-conformist background for Confirmation in the Church of England. We spent an entire session on the Church's calendar, with the observations of fast and festivals and saints days; it surprised him that we spent so long on it. He remarked that I obviously thought this was important. These celebrations matter because we learn so much from Our Lord's life, together with the faith and examples of his saints; so it encourages us to do our best to follow their way of life as best we can. We praise God for their lives and what they have achieved in their strong faith and the great love that they have displayed to Him and the rest of us during their lifetimes.

To remember lives past is in our thoughts as November looms. The season begins with the celebration of All Saints' Day on 1st November followed by the commemoration of all the departed, especially on Remembrance Sunday. In the celebration of all anniversaries, be they secular or religious, there is a further element which will benefit us. It is to learn from our past what has made us great as a nation, what we have to learn, what we have achieved, and what remains to be done in our lives.

So if you are celebrating a wedding, birthday or other achievement this month - congratulations and Happy Anniversary!
Raymond Hayne

THOUGHT FOR THE MONTH

"You see, at just the right time, when we were still powerless, Christ died for the ungodly. Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good man someone might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us."

Paul's letter to the Christians in Rome, Chapter 5 verses 6-8

is nearly 5 years old.

They were started by tenor Andrew Forbes-Lane who lives locally and continues as their Music Director.

Last June they were invited to give a concert at the Minster Church and profits from this were given to mission work at Sachibondu Health Centre in north-west Zambia. The money was used to buy a portable baby heart monitor. This week it went into use.

EDITORIAL

Are you a society in one of our ten villages that would like some extra publicity? Would you like to advertise what you do? Certain people, who want to know what is happening in our villages, are always haranguing me. I am prepared to do a "What's On" but need your help. As a relative newcomer to the valley, I know very little about what is happening. Do you operate a book club, a patchwork group, a photography group, a sports group or even a Ludo group? Do you need more members? If so, I would love to hear from you.

To the few who say "I am not writing anything for the Parish News because it is a religious magazine", please read some of our back issues. It is not all about religion, but about the area and the people who live here.

TURBO'S TALES (THE GOD BLOG FOR OCT 17)

First, I haven't gone dyslexic on you in the title; oh, no! God made a conscious decision many years ago when he was naming all the animals to simply wait until he had completed the task and then turn his own name back to front - DOG. Second, I have decided that there should be a churchy theme this month as the Guvnor came back from church today alternately grinning and grimacing.

You will remember that their local church has an electronic organ that now has over 150 hymns recorded in its technical memory and, with the help of a press on the 'doofer', plays itself. Today, the 'Doofer Gaffer' was redundant as nice Sarah came in to play. More on this later.

The Church has to move with the times and if it is to attract younger members, it needs not only to use hearing aids, speakers and loop systems but to acknowledge the dependence of youth on its gadgets. For example, young parents, who are reluctant to give up their Sunday lie-in, ought to be able to download the service via Bluetooth and read the lessons on their Kindle Bibles. Intercessional prayers can be distributed via Facebook and the collection taken via debit or credit cards using machines available in the church or by transferring funds electronically by BACS. On those occasions when the church moves from darkness into light, there need be no more use for candles; rather, the congregation can be invited to turn on their smart phones, iPads and Kindles in rotation (not unison) first switching to Blue shade to create a gradual change from darkness, through gloom, to a dazzling and exhilarating radiance of LED luminescence.

To save fuel and help the environment, House Groups need not meet physically; they can be accomplished via Facebook, chatrooms, Face time or Skype - or simple conference calls - remembering that prayer applications on Twitter must be restricted to just 140 characters.

Our church has become so used to its organ playing itself that today the Guvnor turned around in his pew at the end and remarked, "I hope this is not a sign of things to come; we can't allow human beings to take over from our machines. Whatever next?"

Guvnor's addendum: I'm not sure what the little upstart means by this insurrection; it's impossible - isn't it?

Stones at dawn(2)

We then walked back to the centre where two groups entertained us for the evening. By this time most people had made their beds, roll mats, bivvy bags and, in some instances, cardboard. At midnight the centre went quiet, well there was one snorer, but I think the walk to the stones had given people an appetite for sleep.

At 5.30am we awoke for a hot drink and a bacon or sausage bap, all part of the inclusive price of ten pounds.

We were then bussed to the stones where we were able to experience them at dawn.

I was most impressed with Alabare, and English Heritage who allowed us to use the venue. The next morning we were co-opted into the 100. Look at English Heritage to learn more.

A big thank you to everyone who sponsored me, I raised £150 for this worthwhile cause. Alabare also support homeless, vulnerable and marginalised people.

YOUNG VOICES ... Grandpa's Great Escape: David Walliams

With Christmas fast approaching and the search for presents beginning, this is a really good read for our younger readers.

David Walliams introduces the story of Jack and his Grandfather, who just happened to be Spitfire Pilot in the Second World War. He explains that the story is set in 1983, before the Internet, mobile phones and games that could be played for weeks on end. This is what attracted my grandson to the story: what on earth did people get up to before the interweb as grandma often calls it.

The story follows Jack and his Grandfather through a whole series of adventures. It also provides a fascinating insight into the aging process for young children, the forgetting of recent things but the long-term memory still being active.

It prompted much discussion in our house with me explaining why Great Granddad would forget things which happened earlier in the day but could remember something that happened many years ago.

The story is very informative explaining a whole series of issues regarding planes, the RAF and school.

Equally, the illustrations are excellent, helping the story to move along. We do paired reading at bed time, I will read a part of a chapter and then Grandson reads the rest, but there were many times when we both broke into fits of giggles at the illustrations and adventures. A word of warning: once involved in the story, you might want to read on yourself; my grandson would wake up early just to carry on reading. I then had to scan the story to catch up.

There is one other warning: the story contains a song that is an earworm (a song or tune that gets stuck in one's mind and repeats as if on tape). When the reader comes across this song, DO NOT sing it. It can be quite embarrassing walking through town, when the grandson and you both start singing the song. Please learn from my mistake.

PLACES TO VISIT ... without breaking the bank

Sometimes on your doorstep is an area of beauty, which few people seem to know about. It is also an area where you can incorporate your shopping and your leisure in one easy outing. Where am I talking about? Warminster Park!

The park has been there for ages, but more recently has been undergoing some important changes. The one that made me smile were the ramps for the ducklings to climb up onto the islands or up out of the lake..

If you want a leisurely walk, then walk round the lake but if you have a gang of explorers in the family, then walk past the lake into the Wild area. This is perfect for the adventurers in the family; you walk down paths and onto some green area where the children can run around to their hearts' content. They can also explore the river, wellies are a must and watch out for the mud or you may leave your wellies behind.

When you have finished, and you need to convince the children that you must go shopping, promise them an ice lolly or a doughnut from the local supermarket, just opposite the park; works with my brood every time.

DOWN ON THE FARM

I suspect having a public foot path running past and through their home, garden and business would for most be an intrusion and to be avoided at all costs!

For us, as a working family farm, we embrace it! It is a showcase, an opportunity for all that walk, run, cycle and ride past daily to share our passion. That passion is agriculture. From the dairy unit, arable ground, grazing land and the environment. We truly care for it, every single day of the year, the animals who are born, bred and see their dying days

DID YOU KNOW?

The Workhouses of yesteryear have been much derided, but did you know that the local workhouse in Warminster tried to establish a District Nurse system around 1900? Perhaps the rest of the country also, after realising that some form of home nursing was more cost effective than hospital care. The Guardians of Warminster Workhouse, with the support of the 'ladies committee', looked after the welfare of the women and children who resided in the Workhouse; and various 'senior' ladies in different parishes, such as vicars' or doctors' wives, were encouraged to establish this home nursing service. Many local associations came to grief because there were no funds other than house to house collections to pay the district nurse. She was poorly and irregularly paid but had a small cottage in her district and usually a bicycle. She was often the first person to be called to help with midwifery, accidents or general bedside care because the Doctor usually cost more. A midwife needed to have a national registration by 1906 but the general nurse was not registered until after WW1.

Barbara Saunt

out with us, the ground that is ploughed, cultivated, drilled and eventually the harvest. This is achieved from love, hard work and knowledge. Knowledge that has come from generations of our family. We are currently on the third generation, in Knook, working alongside the second, and the fourth is now at university bringing back the most up-to-date and researched information available to us so we can continue to pursue our passion and achieve the very best standard of farming possible, always with an open mind and forward thinking to protect for the future.

It is always a pleasure when those who use the footpath stop, watch and ask questions; we actively encourage this, often reading people's minds before they have approached whoever is available to speak to, and believe me there is always someone working on the farm from early hours in the morning until late at night to answer your questions. With the day and age we live in where so much information is readily available at our finger tips via the internet, often misleading, not properly researched, backed up with weak evidence, it is reassuring to have the opportunity to deliver information 'straight from the horse's mouth', information from those who truly know the facts!

The footpath is a connection with the community (and leads to some very good pubs) allowing folk from all walks of life to experience a little of our daily life, as well as seeing the beautiful Wylve Valley and all that it offers from the churches, river bank, cattle grazing (yes, we do still graze cattle) and villages. So next time you are this way, do not hesitate to stop, look and if you wish, learn a little of what is happening 'down on the farm'.

SPORT: FOOTBALL AND ANGLING

Good start to the season for Heytesbury. After a successful summer winning seven out of seven friendlies, the league season started on 2nd September.

Heytesbury got off to a good start winning their first game, against the Aces from Bath, 7-3. This was followed by a trip to Trowbridge to play league newcomers, The Greyhound. Unfortunately, after missing many chances early in the game, Heytesbury eventually lost 3-0.

A trip to Melksham was next to play a very good young team. A lot of character was shown as Heytesbury fought back from 2-0 down at half time to gain a very good draw.

A day off from the league came as we welcomed The Stiffs to Heytesbury Park in the first round of the A and B cup. A 4-1 win saw the Bury move into the next round. Another away trip to newcomers to the league, this time South Newton and Wishford. It was pleasing to get the first clean sheet of the season as Heytesbury won 3-0. The Stiffs then returned to Heytesbury, this time for a league game. Two goals in the first five minutes was a good start to the game for Heytesbury. The game ended 9-0 Heytesbury's biggest win for a numbers of years.

A good start to the campaign sees them sitting in second place in Division Two of the Trowbridge League.

apparently feeding, I managed to induce one of the stocked fish to take a balloon caddis and it was landed and returned.

I also had two grayling on the same fly, which is called a balloon caddis because it has a patch of ethafoam incorporated in the dressing of the head. Today, the final day of our trout season, I visited the Wylde with no great expectations. It was rather as I expected, nothing hatched and nothing rose so I did not even put on a fly but simply enjoyed being by the river, which is now looking very autumnal.

The disappointing feature of the season's trout fishing has been the absence of fly life. This is not just a chalk stream problem but one of all rivers in England, Scotland and Wales (I can't speak for Northern Ireland).

Whilst there has been a steady decline in insect populations over many years due to pollution, abstraction, pesticides and too many people, the recent decline in numbers is almost certainly due to climate change and the ever increasing frequency with which extreme weather events occur: floods, droughts, high temperatures or whatever.

Malham Tarn is the highest "lake" in England and lies on the famous limestone area to the North of the Craven Fault. Spawning facilities for trout are very limited but the food supply is very good so the tarn contains small numbers of large trout. All fish are returned and there is no stocking. I had only two trout in the two days I was there, but they were the largest and the second largest truly wild trout that I have ever caught in a loch or lake so I was satisfied!

ANGLING NOTES OCTOBER 2017

I visited the Avon early in the month. The river was very clear and sparkly although on the low side for the time of year. There was a small hatch of Pale Waterys (a group name for a number of species of ephemerids), the grayling were active and there were some large stocked trout lying out in the open. The wild trout were by contrast lying in the margins and were much less obvious. Although it was not

THE CODFORD MILESTONE

During the 1960s, workmen building the lay-by in Codford High Street, unearthed three large fragments of stone, which they intended to throw in their skip. One of the team recognised the decorative quality of the pieces and carted them off to his garden in Dorset where they resided for many years in an ornamental capacity. When he came to move house, the pieces were offered to the local group of the Milestone Society. Their County Representative for Somerset, Janet Dowding, together with other members, purchased the stone and removed it to Janet's house for safe storage pending repair and relocation to its original site. A bit of research soon established this to be the Wiltshire village of Codford. John Watts and Doug Roseaman of the Salisbury and Wiltshire Milestone Group moved the pieces to Codford where Alec Thomson arranged the repair with Alasdair Rennie and his highly skilled team from the Coade Workshop in Wilton.

The Milestone is one of the first generation erected in the 18th century, when the first turnpike roads were being laid out. The old road through Codford was part of the Fisherton, Wilton, Heytesbury, Willoughby Trust and Redhone Turnpike Trust set up in 1762. An examination of the 1773 Andrews and Dury's Map shows the milestone to be standing on the north side of the High Street, west of St Peter's church, although it was discovered in its broken state opposite The Manse, near the more modern cast iron marker. The stone is Chilmark, some 86cm long, the lower 60cm of which would have been inserted into the ground. It averages about 37cm in width and 18cm in depth.

The top is shaped in a shallow triangle and the front two edges show signs of having been bevelled. The inscription is in capital letters, lower case and Roman numerals, about 7cm high, with the date given in modern (Arabic) numerals:

TO
TO
VI
1766

The repair has been carried out, largely free of charge, with great skill by Alasdair Rennie's Coade Workshop in Wilton and it has been installed, not far from its original home, some 50m west of St Peter's church.

Credit is due to a number of players: Milestone Society enthusiasts, Codford Parish Council for support and funding, Codford Local Historical Society for co-ordinating the project and Alasdair Rennie and his team from Coade Workshop.

GRAVEYARD MYSTERIES

With thoughts of Armistice Day, people will be thinking of the Fallen in two world wars, if they attend the large 'Commonwealth War Graves' ceremony at Codford and Sutton Veny. However, there are two military graves in Corton burial ground. The War Graves Commission acknowledges one and the other is unmarked. The first of the two belongs to volunteer Private MacFarlane who died in Sherrington Camp and the parish Register describes this as a soldier's funeral. He was buried by the Military Chaplain of 77th Infantry Brigade, but there is no head stone. There is a head stone, however, for Private Taylor, also a volunteer, who died at one of the Corton Camps within two weeks of enlisting. For some reason, neither of these men were returned to their families. Probably the Army paid for the interment because these men had no families or the family could not pay for the transportation of a coffin.

DID YOU KNOW?

If a Workhouse Authority, like our local one in Warminster, needed a midwife, her training could be paid out of the rates which were levied on parishes. The nearest training school was Devizes and a regional one was later established at Swindon. The trainee had to agree with the Workhouse Authority to work for three years and live where she was sent. In this area the District Nurse Associations were usually based at Wylde or Sutton Veny. At Sutton Veny the lady, who was a good organiser, was the Hon. Mrs Alexander.

VILLAGE NEWS

HEYTESBURY OPEN PLACE (HOP) CHURCH PROJECT

There has been more good news this month with a successful bid for a grant of £5000 from the Warminster Area Board of Wiltshire Council. This money will go towards the repair of the roof of the south aisle of the church and is very much appreciated.

Signing of new slates for the roof of the church nave and side aisles has already started and will continue throughout the winter. The slates will be available in the church for signing on the afternoon of Sunday 29th October. This is a great opportunity to commemorate a loved one, or a special occasion, for posterity. A donation of at least £10 per slate is requested.

Preparation has begun for the restoration of the interior of the chancel including floor tiles, masonry, windows and paintwork. Scaffolding will soon be going up in the chancel, in addition to the scaffolding covering the outside of the church.

If you would like to receive regular updates of the progress being made, and future events, by email then please contact: info@heytesburychurch.org

SHERRINGTON

These mild and golden days of early Autumn are magical. Now and again there is a tree just touched by the gilding finger but all is still in full leaf and the glorious brush strokes of colour are still to come.

I was waiting for the mass of migrants we had last year. The wires across the village were crowded with numbers of martins and swallows but this year, for some reason, it did not happen and by now the travellers will be well on their way. In the evening, the egrets are back roosting on the mound again, discordant voices as I go to lock the little church. There have been encouraging sightings of kingfishers; they seem to be flourishing this year and it must be the family we see. One hears the piping call and then comes that iridescent flash of blue.

On the cress bed, the visit of the maturing cygnet with a parent bird was short lived and they returned to the river. The pen returned some days later but did not stay. Meanwhile, the cob soldiers on, reporting daily for his feed of corn. On Suttons Hill, the tall spindle tree is a glory of rich, pink berries. It is my favourite tree of the Autumn hedgerow.

Few butterflies in the garden this Summer, even though there are reports of good numbers of Red Admirals, our garden was not visited much. Out walking this morning however butterflies were out flickering about the tracks and hedgerows.

The barn owls that Nigel monitors have had a good year and with plenty of food the numbers are right up there, with some second broods being found. One female has been encountered over the years at seven different sites around the Plain. Records show that she is ten years old! The average age is given as up to five years so that old lady must be a skilled hunter with a bit of luck on her side too.

As ever, the little church looked beautiful for our Harvest Thanksgiving. It was full of colour and though we no longer have Bert Imber's wonderful dahlias, a little of his scarlet virginia creeper found its way onto a windowsill. Sherrington Village was most generous and provided an impressive pile of provisions. When, on the following Wednesday, it was time to make the delivery to the Warminster Food Bank, that task was taken out of our hands and for that we were most grateful.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Hon. Mrs Alexander had a strong interest in the District Nursing Association for Sutton Veny. In order to help save the association money, she, along with Mrs Waddington, nursed patients in their own homes when typhoid fever struck the village. This saved the expense of hiring another District Nurse when the small isolation hospital in Warminster was full.
